

COMMUNITY FUTURES HURON OFF TO A GOOD START IN 2018

February 15, 2018

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Although it is still early in the year, there are many changes afoot with Community Futures Huron. Known formerly as the Huron Business Development Corporation (HBDC), Community Futures Huron not only has a new name, but a new home as well.

Following an extensive site selection process, Community Futures Huron has put the shingle up in downtown Brussels. "It just made a lot of sense", according to General Manager, Paul Nichol. "It's a good thing to shake things up once and awhile. And there is just so much going on in this part of Huron County. We wanted to be part of that rising tide."

The new name and office move have not changed the traditional services that Community Futures Huron has provided for the last 25 years. These include assistance with business start-up, free business mentoring and commercial loans to small business start-ups and expansions. In fact, Community Futures Huron just received good news that it has an additional $1.2 million dollars now available to lend to businesses throughout all of Huron County.

"New name - new location - same great service to small business," says Nichol. "Now that we are all settled in, we look forward to what the next 25 years will bring". Check us out at www.cfhurion.ca.
